COVID-19 UPDATES

	Update Status	Observation Date
Latest Update	As reported previously on this platform (Qatar 7 May), migrant workers in Qatar, who make up the majority of the country's workforce, appear to have been disproportionately impacted by the Covid-19 pandemic in the country, which reported 1,595 new cases on 7 June. Qatar's overcrowded labor camps are a "fertile ground for transmission of COVID-19," according to a health expert with the World Bank (CBS 15 May). In Doha's central prison, detention conditions have deteriorated, according to detainees interviewed by Human Rights Watch (HRW). Reports denounce the lack of antiseptic gel and the limited access to soap and water. Due to the overcrowding in the buildings, the social distancing is impossible to maintain. HRW called out the government on the outbreak in the central prison, to which Qatar's communications office responded shortly after. They declared that the report of an outbreak was false, and that "prisoners were being provided with health services 'equal' to the rest of the country's residents." On 17 May, Qatar announced that individuals not wearing a protection mask in public spaces would be arrested and jailed for up to 3 months. On 8 June, 250 Bangladeshi were released from prisons or detention camps in Qatar and taken to Bangladesh on a special flight.	2020
	With more than 17,000 cases of Covid-19, Qatar has the highest infection rate in the Gulf. Most cases concern migrant workers, who make up 95 percent of the country's workforce. Since 2010, in preparation for the 2022 World Cup, there has been an important increase in the numbers of migrant workers, in particular in sectors such as construction, hotel, and domestic work. Most of these workers reside in a work camp near Doha, an industrial zone that was placed under quarantine. There were reportedly shortages of food during the first days of the confinement. The NGO Qatar Charity distributed meals to some 4,000 migrant workers, but the total number of residents in the camp is estimated to be several tens of thousands. The conditions in the work camp are particularly worrying because migrants do not have the space to socially distance and most of them do not have access to health care or proper sanitation. Many migrant workers were arrested and deported to Nepal, according to Amnesty International. They were told that they were being taken to screening centres, and that they would return to their accommodation later. Instead, they were taken to detention centres, where "they were kept in abominable conditions for several days", as reported by Amnesty International. On 1 April, a coalition of rights groups, including Migrant-Rights.org and Amnesty International, issued a joint letter "urging Qatar to take adequate steps to protect migrant workers amid the COVID-19 crisis." The letter, which was also sent to the other Gulf countries, made the following recommendations: 1. Ensure that all workers, quarantined or otherwise, whose living conditions leave them particularly vulnerable to infection, are tested and provided with appropriate medical treatment, and that undocumented worker can seek medical treatment without fear of detention. All workers should have access to adequate housing facilities, including a facility to isolate themselves if necessary, as well as water and sanitation, so they can effectively protect themselves; 2. No one, including migrant workers, is detained for violating quarantine; 3. Migrant workers who are unable to work, either due to preventive quarantine or testing positive for COVID-19, continue to receive their full wages; 4. Provide the public with information to ensure that migrant workers, including domestic workers, do not face discrimination or stigma in relation to the COVID-19 virus; 5. Ensure domestic workers are provided with access to timely and adequate protective measures and healthcare and receive sick pay if they are unable to work due to illness.	2020
	Riots have broken out in Qatar's prisons. In the central prison in Doha, prisoners attacked a guard and burnt several cells. It has also been reported that the administration is refusing to release prisoners even though Covid-19 is spreading within its penal institutions. Rioters are being placed in isolation, without water, food or cigarettes. Some have been transferred to a prison at the centre of an industrial estate despite the quarantine measures in place in that facility. Qatar is the member of the Gulf Cooperation Council with most Covid-19 cases. 483 cases have been confirmed on 22 March 2020. Reports have also indicated that the country's largest labour camp for migrant workers has become a virtual prison, with police guarding the perimeter, leaving thousands of workers trapped in squalid, overcrowded camps, where the virus can spread rapidly. A Nepali worker who lives inside the area commented: "we are not allowed to walk in groups or eat in a tea shop. But you can still buy food and take it home. I'm worried about my family back home. There won't be anyone to take care of them if anything happens to me". The GDP has been unable to find any reports indicating that authorities have taken measures to assist migrants and asylum seekers, including those in detention.	2020

Relevant recommendations issued by treaty bodies	Committee on the Elimination of Discrimination Against Women	§26. The Committee recommends that the State party: ... (b) Collect data and establish appropriate mechanisms aimed at early identification and referral of, and assistance and support for, victims of trafficking, especially women migrant workers arrested for “ absconding ” and other breaches of the sponsorship law, violations of the immigration law or prostitution;	2014
	Committee against Torture	§10. The State party should promptly take effective measures to ensure that all detainees, including non-citizens, are afforded, in practice, all fundamental legal safeguards from the very outset of detention, including the rights to promptly receive independent legal assistance and a medical examination by an independent doctor, contact relatives, and appear before a judge within a time limit in accordance with international standards. The State party should also take steps to ensure effective monitoring of the adherence of all personnel to the laws governing safeguards, and discipline or prosecute those who fail to provide them to persons deprived of their liberty as required by law. The State party should ensure that all detainees, including minors, are included on a central register. The State party is encouraged to introduce systematic video and audio monitoring and recording of all interrogations, in all places where torture and ill-treatment are likely to occur, and provide the necessary resources to that end. § 15. The State party should ensure that fully independent monitoring of all places used for deprivation of liberty, including the Deportation Detention Centre , psychiatric facilities and the State security prison, takes place on a regular basis, as well as including unannounced visits, and should follow up effectively on the outcome of such systematic monitoring in order to prevent torture and other cruel, inhuman or degrading treatment or punishment. The State party should strengthen the mandate and resources of the National Human Rights Committee and other national monitoring mechanisms to that end. The State party is encouraged to accept monitoring of places of detention by non-governmental organizations and relevant international mechanisms and to consider ratifying the Optional Protocol to the Convention as soon as possible. §20. The State party should take all necessary measures to : ...(b) Ensure systematic procedures to identify victims of trafficking among vulnerable groups, such as those arrested for immigration violations or prostitution, and provide protection for victims and access for them to medical, social rehabilitative and legal services, including counselling services, as appropriate...	2013
	Committee against Torture	§42. The State party should: (a) Refrain from detaining undocumented migrants for prolonged periods, use detention as a measure of last resort only and for as short a period as possible and promote alternatives to detention; (b) Ensure that detained foreigners, including undocumented migrants, have the right to contact the consular services of their respective country and are entitled to receive legal aid; (c) Continue its efforts to improve the conditions of detention and alleviate the overcrowding of deportation detention facilities, including through the application of non-custodial measures. In doing so, the Committee draws the State party ’ s attention to the United Nations Standard Minimum Rules for the Treatment of Prisoners (the Nelson Mandela Rules) and the United Nations Rules for the Treatment of Women Prisoners and Non-custodial Measures for Women Offenders (the Bangkok Rules).	2018
	Committee on the Rights of the Child	§34: (...) the Committee urges the State party to: (a) Refrain from holding children and families with children in immigration detention facilities in line with the principles of the best interests of the child and of family unity; systematically employ non-custodial measures rather than detention; and establish shelters for those categories of migrant;	2017
